

Mid-Season Rifle – (Pronghorn, Early Mule Deer, Moose) Gear List

Clothing:

Prepare for Cold temps in the morning and evening and warm temps in the mid-day and afternoon. Temperature ranges from below zero, to teens in the morning to mid-20's, 30's, 40's and 50's in the mid-day and afternoon. Feels 10 degrees warmer or colder at our altitude. Should also prepare for snow, wind, and cold all day.

Any camo pattern with greens, greys, and taupe colors works well in mid-season.

Layering is the key.

Base layer (Marino Wool or equivalent) – Should also have a warm layer of long underwear to go over your base layer.

Outside layer (Pant, shirt, warm jacket, vest, hats, gloves, head net/cover) – Warm hats and gloves are a must this time of the year!

Outer layer should be Gore-Tex and able to repel cold rain and snow!

500 Inches of Hunter Orange (Vest and Hat) – Can NOT be camo, must be solid orange or pink is also accepted by the state of Colorado.

Boots:

Mid-season you will want to have insulated boots (400 – 1200 Grams of insulation) but be consist of boot weight, to heavy and you will not be able to walk quickly, quietly, or longer distances if needed.

Boot gators for both Elk and Moose are a must as we hunt around streams, bogs and, willow bottoms that can be fun to cross. Quiet gators will help keep your feet dry when needed!

Boots should be tall enough to support your ankles properly, rolling or twisting your ankle on deadfall, rocks, or other objects can end your hunt early.

Socks are super important, purchasing high quality socks and having the ability to layer socks could be the difference between blisters and no blisters...you do NOT want blisters!

Gear:

Optics

Minimum should be 10 x 42.

Built in Rand Finders are key, but not 100% necessary.

Recommended Brands:

Vortex

Leica

Swarovski

Rangefinder

If you can get one with an angle compensator, those work best for giving the most accurate yardage.

Packs:

A day pack is suitable for our hunts, you do NOT need a giant pack that would be used for a backcountry hunt. In most cases large packs just get in the way in impeded shots (especially if you have no practiced shooting your bow with a large pack on your back) You will keep water, food, extra clothing, and a other recommended equipment in your pack, so again it does not have to be a big pack.

Miscellaneous Equipment:

- Tripod shooting stick (Primos TALL Trigger stick is the best option for our hunts)
 - Bi-pods and mono pods are NOT recommended.
- Extra Ammo (2-3 Boxes Minimum)
- Headlamp/Extra Batteries
- Sunglasses
- Quiet, packable Rain Gear (Pants/Jacket)
- Small to medium knife
- Back-up Firearm
- Hand Muff
- Neck Gator/Balaclava
- 2-3 190 Quart Extra Large Coolers or a chest freezer to pack meat home.
- Pick-up trucks work best for rental vehicles, full size SUV's are also good, but get a pickup if you can

Equipment you DO NOT Need

- Muck Boots – Tall rubber boots are not a good fit for our hunts.
- Large Packs
- Spotting Scope
- Skinning/Gutting Knives
- Calls/Decoys
- ATV/UTV

See the Hunt Prep Information on specifics on rifle, ammo, and rifle optics recommendations.